

GoToMyPC Alternatives?

Time to renew my GoToMyPC subscription- their prices have skyrocketed.

Any options out there?

---

yes, they are insane prices right now, i would be up for knowing an alternative too!

I LOVE SplashTop.

Would either TeamViewer or Microsoft Remote Desktop work for you? I have used both - VPN in to my network, then use either to access my desktop.

I use Chrome Remote Desktop. I've used it for years (ever since I left GoToMyPC), and I'm very happy with it. And it's free.

I use Splashtop Pro with one of my attorney clients - it's what his IT guy recommended and it's very affordable.

I use RemotePC. IIRC, it is free for one user.

I faced the same problem a couple of years ago and jettisoned GoToMyPC in favor of RemotePC, which is the best and most affordable alternative to the old GoToMyPC that I've found. It operates almost exactly the same way that GoToMyPC did, and is a fraction of the cost. In fact, right now, they're offering it for less than 3 dollars for the first year for two computers. I have it installed on my workstation, and my laptop, and it works with Android and IOS too. I haven't used it much this past year, given the pandemic, but when I travel and need to access my desktop and files, including during trials, it's essential. The link to their Homepage is here:

RemotePC looks good in reviews. I don't use any of them.

I use LogMeIn. Not cheap, but very reliable.

I moved to SplashTop when my GoToMyPC subscription price increased exponentially. I have been very happy with SplashTop and wouldn't go back even if GTMPC reduced prices. Caroline A. Edwards, Pennsylvania

DWSERVICE.NET

Free, easy; limited bandwidth but you can get a paid version that's faster.

I third (or fourth, or whatever, I lost count) Splashtop. When Covid hit we had to quickly figure out a way to get the staff able to remote in. After comparing the services out there and receiving some input from some IT people we chose Splashtop. It was much more reasonable than the other paid alternatives out there, and I haven't heard any complaints from the staff.
